TIGERAMA '63

Seventh Edition

Groveton High School

Fairfax County

Alexandria, Virginia

DEDICATION

In September Mr. Robert B. Davis left Groveton to become Supervisor of Secondary Education in Fairfax County.

Mere words cannot describe Mr. Davis or his impact on Groveton. In his office, he dealt resolutely but fairly, informing parents, guiding teachers, and disciplining students. Alone, he contemplated the young life around him, the students whose lives had become such a major part of his own. Laughter, of the knee-slapping variety, was also typical of Mr. Davis. He could always be counted on to break up at a good joke or perhaps at some of his own New England humor.

For his unfailing service, innate fairness, constant vitality, and refreshing humor we dedicate the '63 Tigerama to

ROBERT B. DAVIS

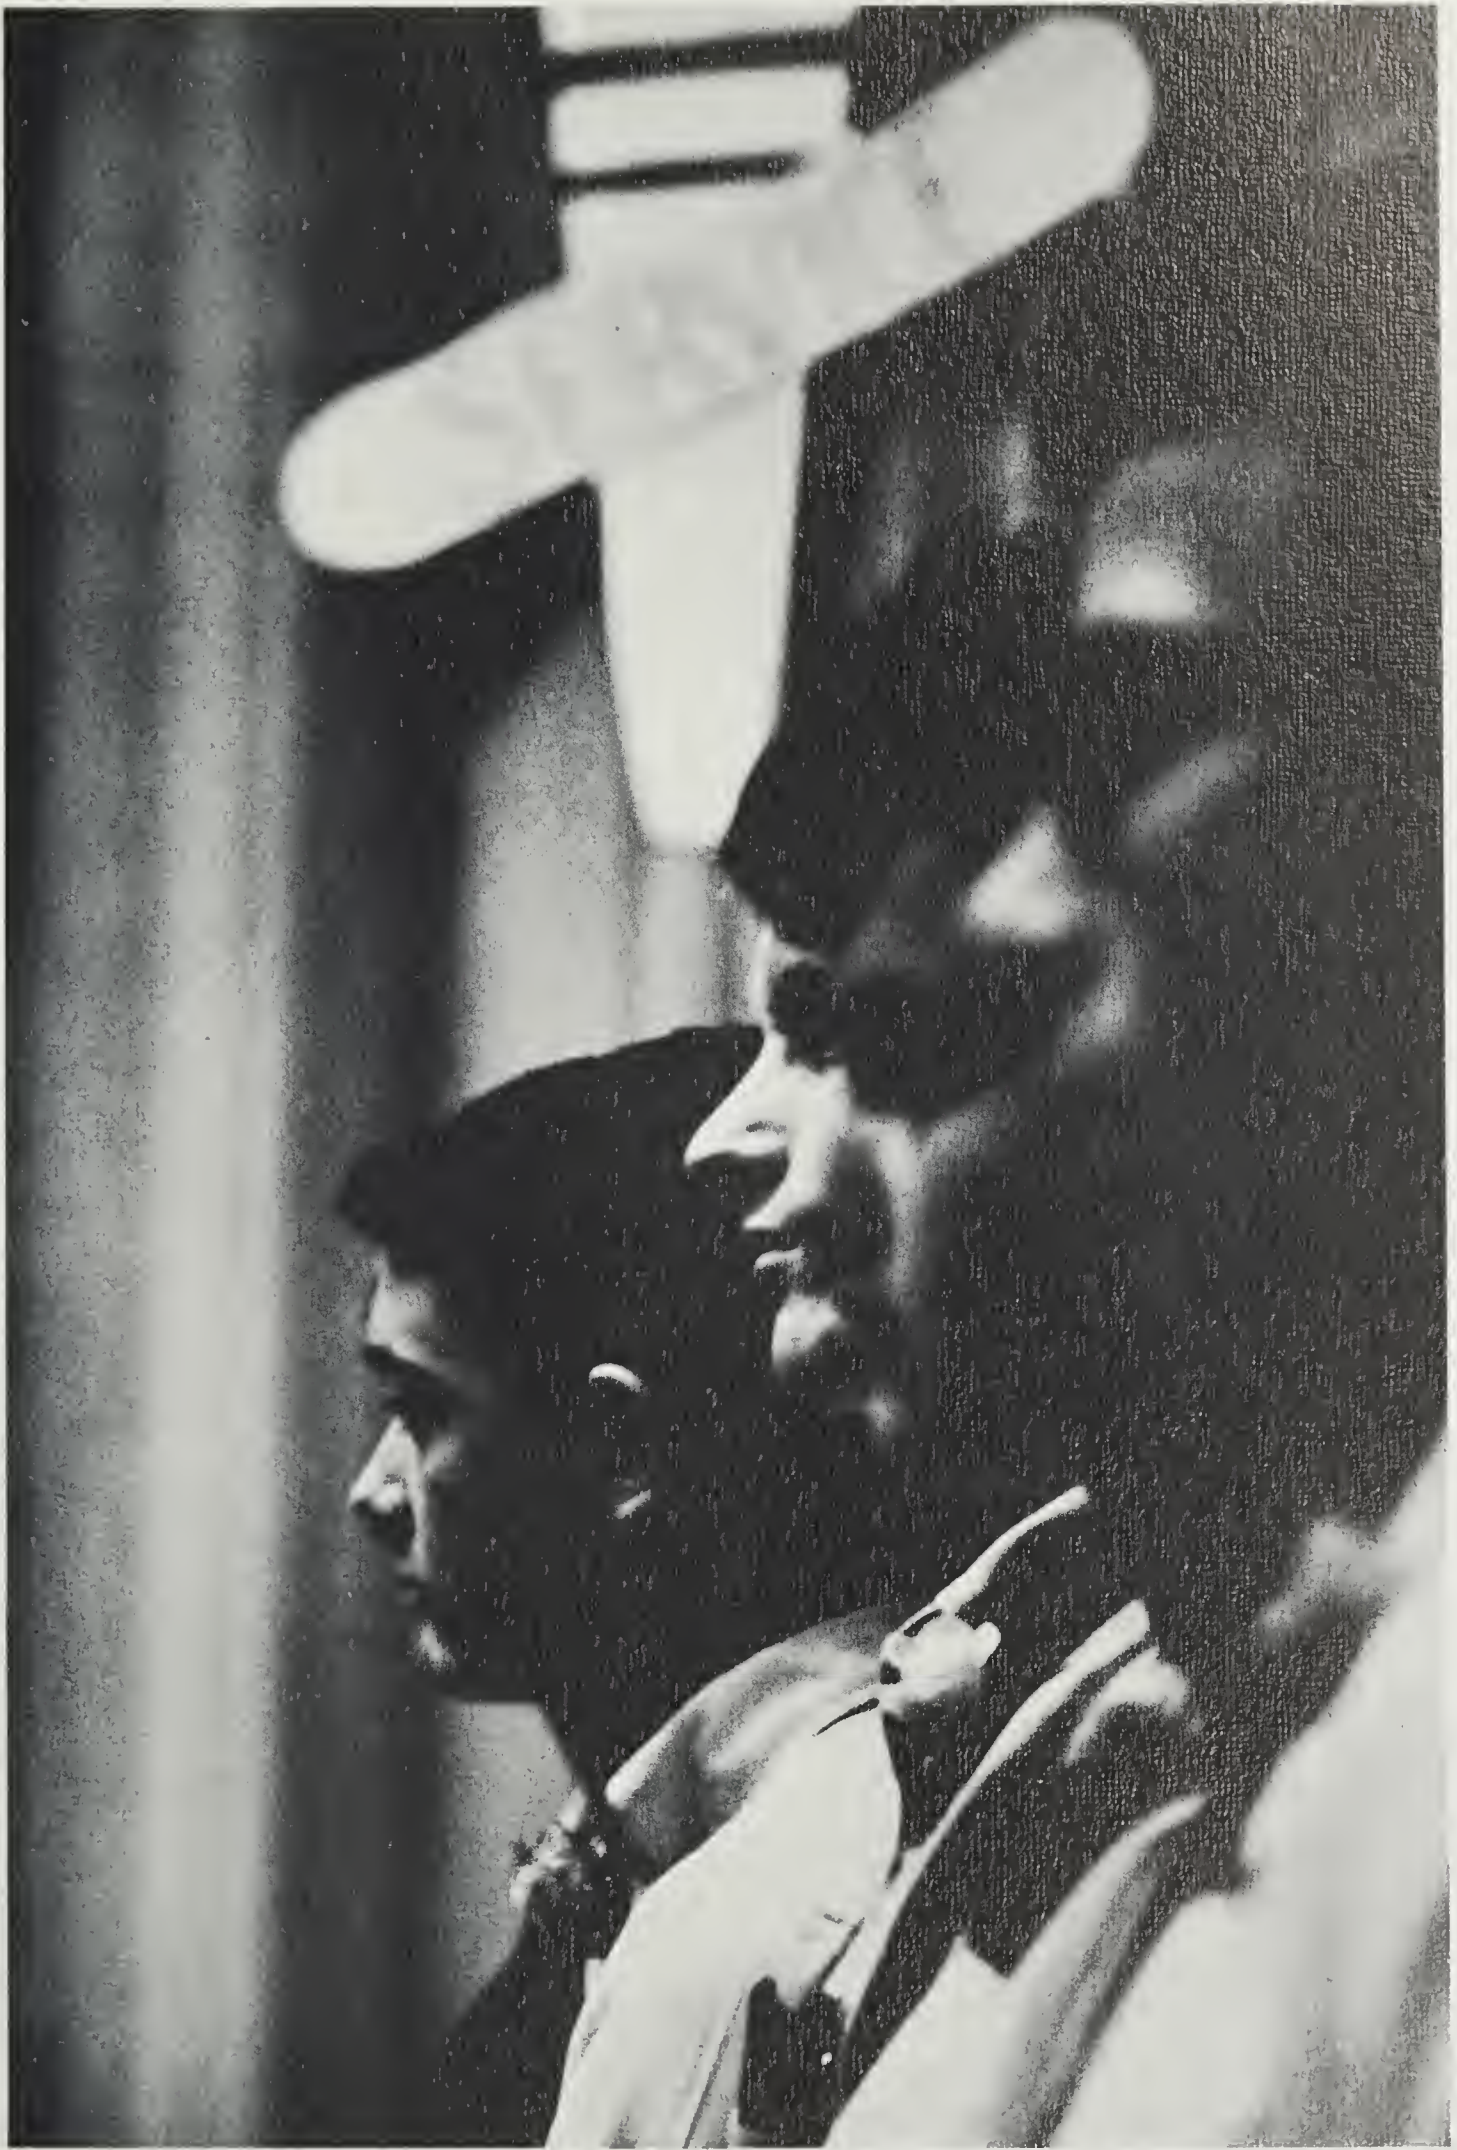

The game of life is worth playing,
but the struggle is the prize.

—Inge

A word is not a crystal, transparent and unchanging, it is like the skin of a living thought and may vary greatly in color and content according to the circumstances and time in which it is used.

—Holmes

A little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men.

—Anonymous

A little work, a little sweating, a few brief flying years;
A little joy, a little fretting, some smiles and then some tears.

—Mason

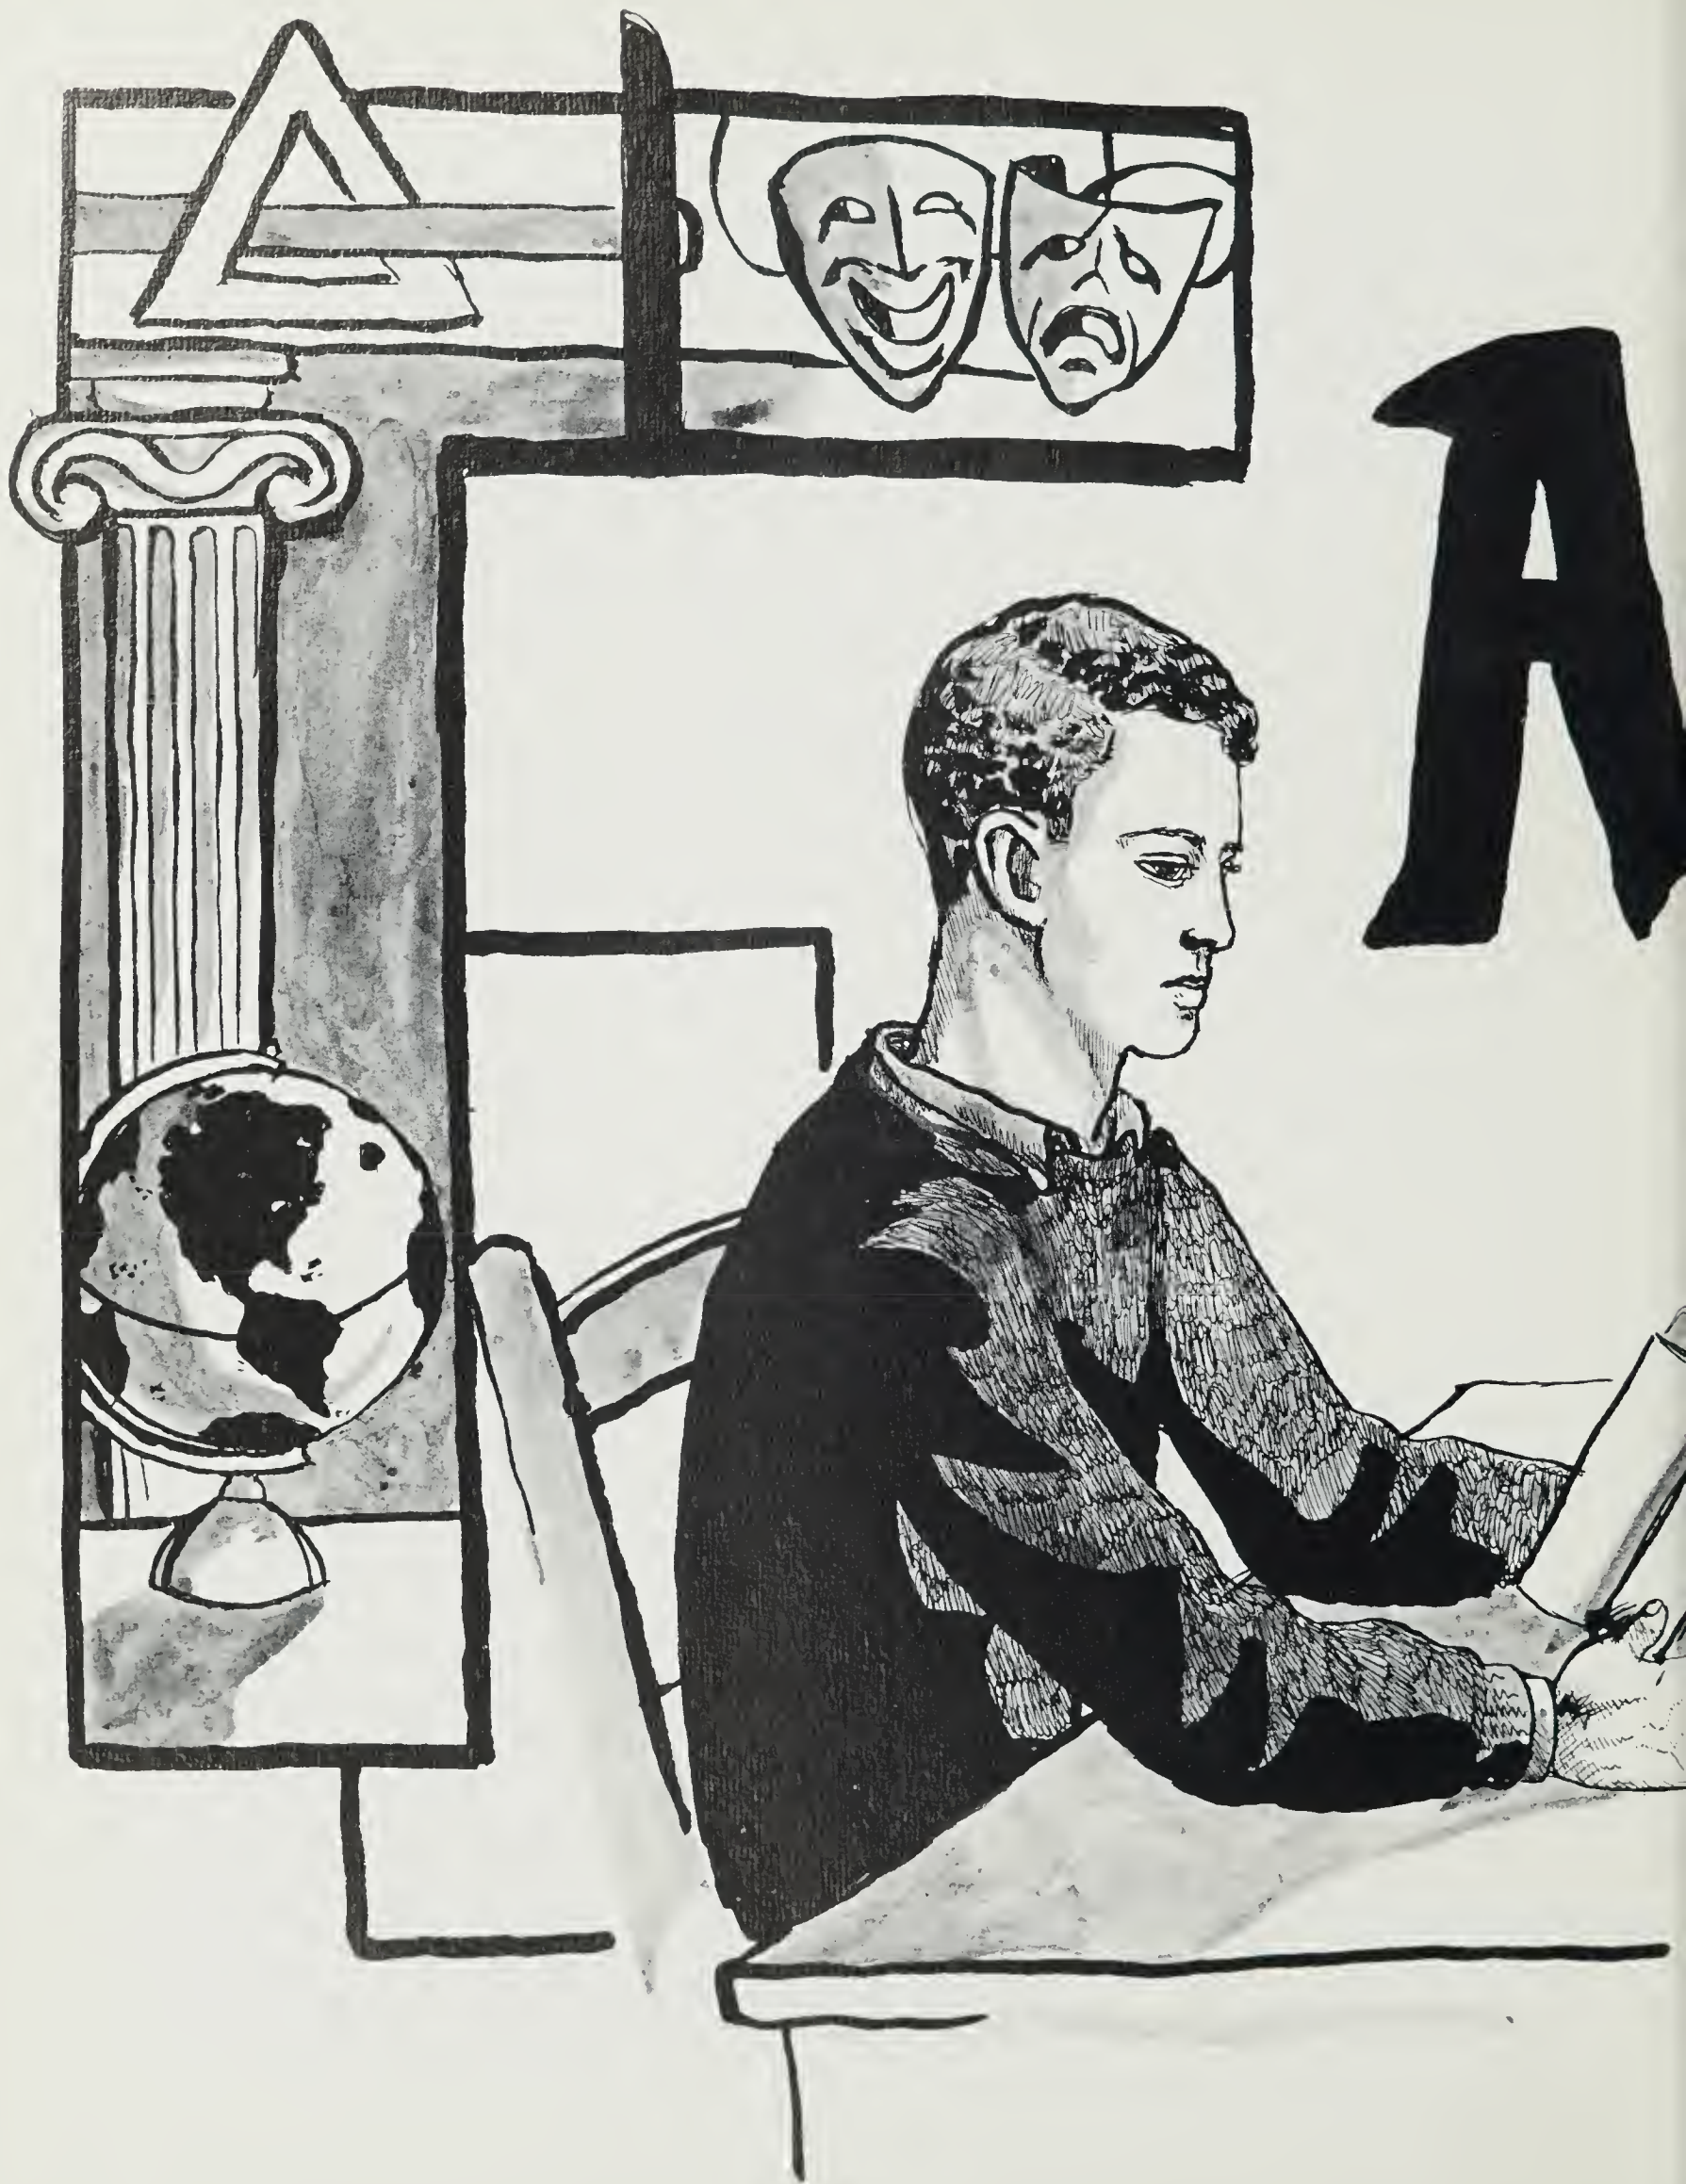

The hasty multitudes admiring entered, and the work some praise, and some the architect.

A MESSAGE FROM THE STAFF . . .

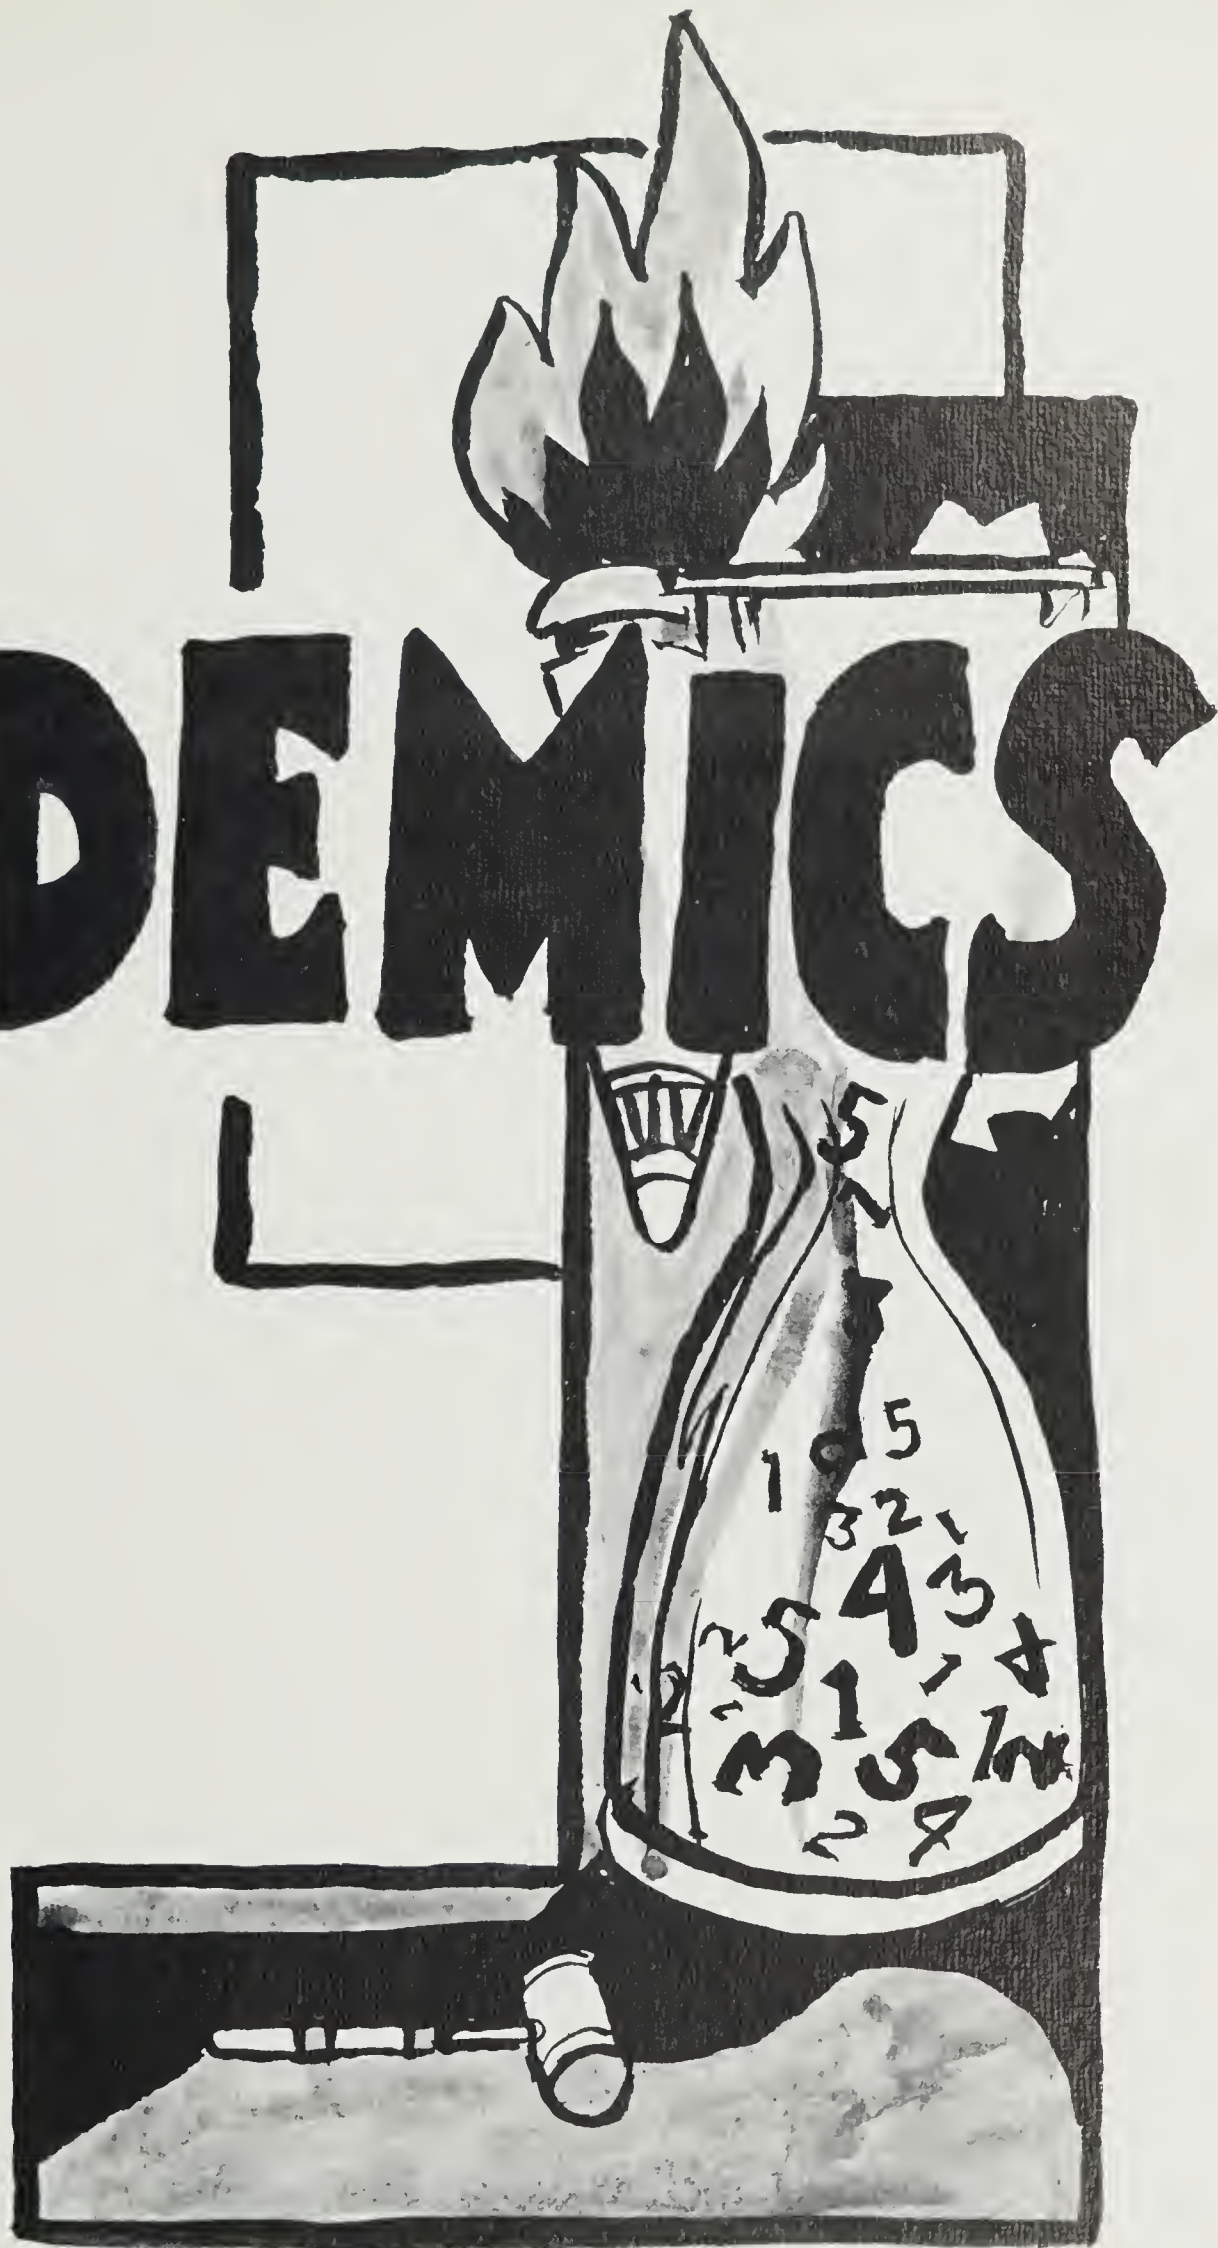

Such obstacles as having no sponsor and no room confronted the Tigerama staff at the beginning of the 1962-63 season. After acquiring Miss Hill as sponsor and the Art Room as working space, the staff had to allot pages for the various sections, conduct the Ad Drive, start taking pictures, and decide upon a theme. Based on its own experience, the staff realized that change was a most appropriate quality to cultivate throughout the book. Among the fortuitous events which succeeded this decision was Mr. Gibb's farewell address, in which he proclaimed that change was a necessary part of life. A major policy change was renewed with emphasis on the pictorial rather than on the verbal, because a yearbook is essentially a picture history book. In so doing, the photographer and layout editor were allowed complete freedom and were not bound by the standard rules of yearbook form. Complete panic prevailed upon receipt of a sickly yellow post card announcing the arrival of the publisher to pick up various sections within 72 hours. These, however, were the fun times which drew together a group of diverse personalities intent on one objective—chronicling the events of another year in Groveton's changing history.

ADMINISTRATION

On March 15, 1963, Mr. George Gibbs left Groveton to become principal of the new Fort Hunt High School. Mr. Rodney Taylor assumed the duties of principal on that date. Leaving his position in the social studies department, Mr. William Jackson replaced Mr. Taylor as assistant principal for instruction. Mr. Frank Kley will join the administration at Fort Hunt in the fall of 1963.

STUDENT HELPERS

Student office workers aided in maintaining smooth functioning of the school. Student control, guidance, and main office helpers performed such jobs as answering the phones, checking students in and out, and delivering messages and ominous blue passes. Student library helpers shelved and checked out books while Mrs. Babb's helpers sold supplies in the school store.

A crew of ten custodians, headed by Mr. Wayland, was in charge of cleaning the halls and each room every night after a typical day in which 1500 students thrust paper in their desks, tossed spitballs in the halls, and deposited gum on the walls. At the end of the year the custodians will undoubtedly find many interesting articles when they inspect each locker.

September 1962 through June 1963 will undoubtedly be remembered as a time of rapid change, both world-wide and school-wide. People like JFK, Khrushchev, Castro, and De Gaulle and places like Cuba, Laos, Viet Nam, Red China and Africa rocked the political, historical, and moral foundations of the world. At Groveton, students were affected by a shift in administration, new teachers, and unusual, modern ways of instruction. Change is essential, and it is the future adults who perpetuate this quality of change. Who emphasizes this obligation to young people? Certainly parents and church do. Perhaps most of all, adolescents are influenced by their teachers, who inspire a desire for discovery and knowledge in the pliable minds of their students.

With each student having the same advisor throughout four years of high school, the five class counselors became better attuned to the individual's needs. Underclass counselors worked to help ninth and tenth graders plan their schedules while upperclass counselors concentrated on guiding eleventh and twelfth graders to suitable college and vocational choices. The Guidance Department administered SCAT and STEP tests to freshmen and juniors, Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Tests to interested juniors and seniors, and the Kuder Vocational Test. The department also conducted a study of school withdrawals.

In September the library opened its doors with 800 new books available, particularly in the philosophy area. Also available were the volumes of The Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics, donated by the class of 1962. Librarians lectured to classes on the correct use of the many library facilities. The library was open before and after school, extending to students an offer of quiet absorption of knowledge.

Three new courses sparked renewed challenge and interest in the English Department. Students of the drama classes learned theater techniques and presented three Christmas plays for the English classes. A class in creative writing encouraged the dissection of various literary works and required three pieces of original writing from each student every week. World literature encompassed the history of writing from the time of the Egyptians to the present and inspired the analyzation of poetry, drama, the novel, and the short story.

1000 students were enrolled in the social studies program, absorbing knowledge of the historical, governmental, social, economical, and geographical aspects of the world. Classes were enriched by the lectures of visiting speakers, who spoke on their particular fields. Interested students attended the February 9 performance of "Twelve Angry Men", an excellent courtroom drama.

Change prevailed in the Mathematics Department with the addition of Functions and Matrices and Intermediate Math to the curriculum and the successful introduction of a new teaching method, SMSG, which associated the use of high school math with qualifications for the occupations of today and brought out the interrelated aspects of the various branches of mathematics. This forward-looking manner of teaching marks a great change in the instruction of such an intricate subject as mathematics.

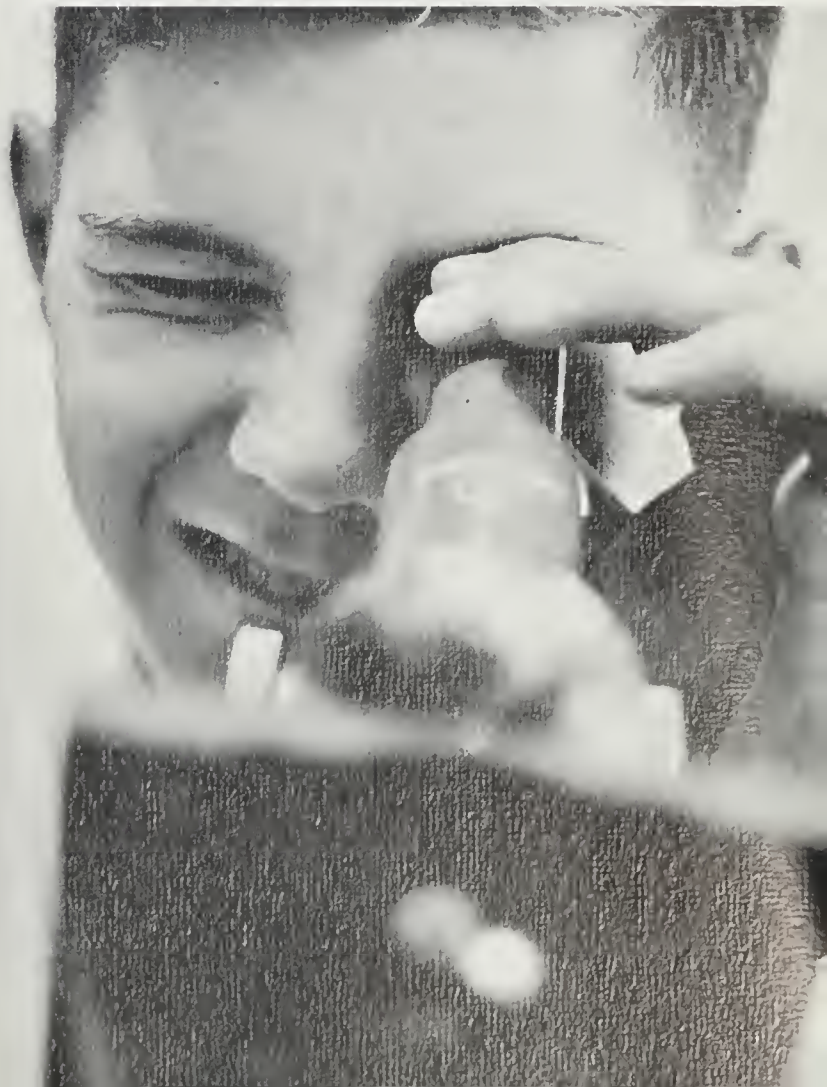

Three new courses were incorporated into the Science Department. BSCS Biology stressed the ecological approach of learning by doing. Students made several excursions to observe plants and soil conditions and caught insects for their collections. PSSC was introduced as an advanced course in physics, and earth science was unique in that the first semester was concerned with earth science and the second semester with a combination of physics, chemistry, and biology.

The sound barrier has been broken, but the language barrier still exists. Students attempted to overcome this obstacle by studying French, Spanish, Latin, and newly-introduced German. The Audio-Lingual method was employed, stressing conversation and accent. Latin III and IV classes were separated this year due to an increased interest in that subject indicated by high enrollment in those classes. The Christmas fiesta allowed Spanish students the fun of breaking pinatas.

A wide range of courses including typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, business math, and clerical office practice was offered to 600 business students. The introduction of new facilities such as electric typewriters and an IBM dictation and transcribing machine allowed the Business Department to meet the needs of the changing world of business careers. Students could put into practice their office skills upon passing the Civil Service Exam given on March 22.

Industrial Cooperative Training offers a work-study program designed for students interested in trade and industrial occupations. Pupils following the program attended school and worked part-time in area businesses learning the skills of their particular job interest.

The Vocational Office Training program offered students the opportunity to apply skills learned in school to a real job situation, allowing them to find their occupational interests while receiving their education. Participants in the program left school after completing their required subjects to report to their places of employment. Employers were contacted every 9 weeks for evaluative purposes.

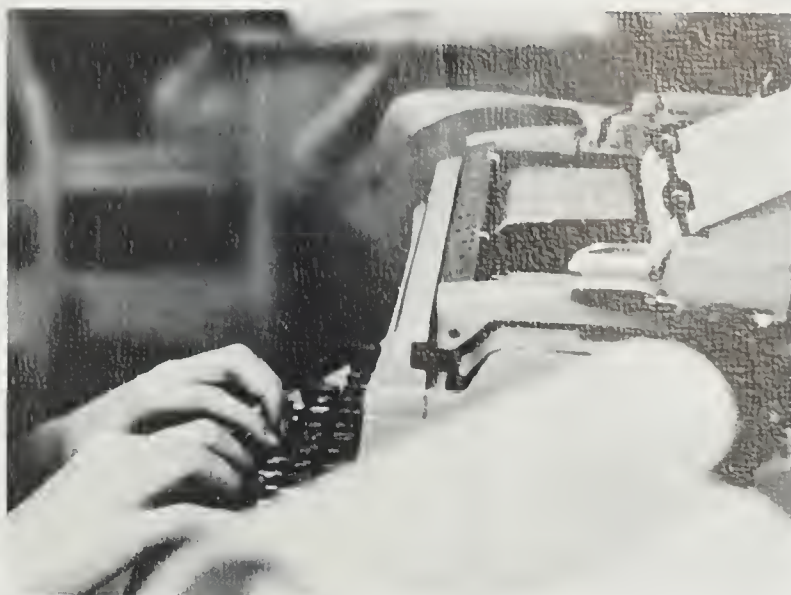

Pursuing the approach of learning by doing, the Home Economics Department introduced new teaching methods. Students experimented with mice in a study of the effects of diet, and observed the actions of children in a unit of child care. Believing that peace in any language begins at home, a course in family life overseas was added to the curriculum to promote a better understanding of other countries. These innovations helped to emphasize that home economics concerns everyone.

Forming two aspects of cultural life at Groveton, the Art Department and the Music Department strived to enrich both the knowledge and appreciation of the arts. A new approach to art instruction was instituted this year. Beginning students took fundamentals and design, a course in basic techniques and art appreciation. Advanced students chose between drawing and painting or ceramics and sculpture. Visits to local galleries and museums enhanced the program.

The Music Department also experienced a year of change with the introduction of new band and choral instructors. In addition to individual and group vocal and instrumental training, music students studied note values, composers and their works, and other aspects of music appreciation. Concerts in the school and community showcased the versatile talents and impressive ability of both the students and instructors.

Amid the whirl of drills and saws, industrial arts students perfected their skills in the manual arts. Showcases were filled with drawings and miniatures done by mechanical drawing and woodworking students. Those working with metals constructed tool boxes, vises, drill presses, brass candlesticks, and hacksaws. A metal lathe was a welcome addition to the department's equipment.

With various innovations and a new director, the Physical Education Department experienced an unusual and fulfilling year. New instructional concepts included the use of textbooks in the Drivers' Education course, the addition of archery in the intramural program, the instruction of isometric groups, and the emphasis on a new and better physical fitness program.

To effect a deeper understanding between the students and the Student Co-operative Association, this year's officers, headed by President Russell Osmond, planned activities which were both worthwhile and fun for all Grovetonites. Under the auspices of the Administration, Project Paradise was finally completed, providing students with a place of relaxation during lunch and before and after school, a student directory was compiled, a clothes drive was initiated, and several dress-up days were instituted to encourage students to dress more formally. The SCA was also a sounding board for students who expressed ideas for the school by dropping suggestions in the box outside room 219. As in previous years, the SCA continued to run the Book Store, to sponsor the Homecoming Dance, the Magazine Drive, and the judging of Christmas door decorations, and to issue SCAnarama, a weekly news bulletin. At mid-year the student body received an informative report from each committee of the SCA in a further attempt to acquaint students with the functions of their government. One of the most important phases of the SCA was the administration of the Leadership Training Course, held in April to help students develop their potential leadership qualities. Spring projects included the annual Funarama and Road-eo, connected with the National Safety Association. This administration will undoubtedly be remembered for broadening Groveton's student exchange program. Secretary of State Carlton Price was instrumental in arranging the visits of three Latin American students from November to January and of ten Mexican students who stayed for a week. Both the foreign exchange program, new ideas for participation, and the completion of traditional activities made this year's SCA one of the most forceful in Groveton's history.

HONOR CODE

We the students of CROVETON HIGH SCHOOL believe in and shall strive to uphold the following principles:

To show honesty and respect in our dealings with the faculty, students and others.

To strive for cleanliness and self control in our speech and to keep degradation and unkind thoughts from our minds.

To respect school property and the property of others.

To mold and discourage unfavorable habits which may bring discredit to us, our home, our school and our community.

We accept these high standards as being a necessity to our development of honor and integrity.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

Under the direction of Mr. Pasquale, the Symphonic Band enhanced many school functions this year. The marching band performed at half-time at all home football games and at one away game. The formal concert season began with the Christmas concert, followed by Jubilee '63 in May, and concluded with the annual Spring Concert. When not preparing for Groveton's activities, representative members participated in the Northern Virginia All-State Band Festival. On February 1, 2, and 3 all band members competed in the March District Music Festival. The non-participating reserve band continued its training to be symphonic members.

Comprising the glamour counterpart of the Band Department were the 12 Golden Tigerettes under the leadership of Drum Majorette Judy Morris. They performed at all the home football games, at Homecoming, and at Jubilee. They also participated in a contest at the Washington Coliseum February 23. The majorettes also carried out an annual tradition of sponsoring a baton contest to which twirlers from the Eastern seaboard came to compete. Over the Christmas holidays the baton corps held a tea for the majorettes from various area schools. Pride and joy of the Golden Tigerettes was their new dressing room, transformed from a practice room in the Choral Department. Its theatrical atmosphere befitted the showmanship which these 12 girls displayed throughout the year.

Choral members experienced another successful year with a new teacher directing them, Mr. Anthony. Activities during the first semester started with Symphonic Choir singing at the National Honor Society induction in October. Next came the traditional Thanksgiving Assembly and Christmas Concert, at which the newly-formed Madrigals made an impressive debut. On December 5 and on December 20 both Symphonic and Charmettes sang at the White House for the Pageant of Peace. Chosen members of those choirs participated in the All-State Chorus held at McLean High School on February 15, 16, and 17. Pride of the Music Department was Jubilee '63, at which all band and choral members delighted audiences with their professional skill. Final joint effort of the year was the Spring Concert, held in May.

In promoting a better understanding of the French language and civilization, the French Club, Les Erudits, selected its members by invitation only. The sole requirement was that the student converse fluently in the language. To intensify the club's social objective, meetings were held in the evening once a month in members' homes where various guest speakers, movies, and slides provided the entertainment. Guest speakers included Mesdames Selens, Park, and Hodson, who not only gave insight into the French way of life, but also provided the opportunity for members to hear French spoken in the vernacular.

Two requirements for the French Honor Society made the club deservedly elite for followers of the language. Membership was limited to ten per cent of the total enrollment of those taking French, and potential members had to maintain at least ninety per cent in each subject. Perhaps the most impressive activity of the French Honor Society was that of the induction ceremony. New inductees lit small white candles from that of the President's and repeated a promise to perpetuate the study of the language and civilization of France. Throughout the year members listened to records and viewed slides obtained from a New York embassy and attempted to procure at least one professional French movie.

One of the most delightful excursions of the Spanish Club, Los Gatos, was a trip to La Fonda, a famous Spanish restaurant in Washington. With Mrs. Clark, the 32 members enjoyed various activities including a Spanish movie. They expanded their knowledge of the language and customs with the help of the club's president from Puerto Rico, Jose Gutierrez, and Latin American exchange students from Peru, Colombia, and Mexico.

In its second year of existence, the Spanish Honor Society offered various interesting activities for the pursuit of Spanish culture and traditions. Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Struck, the society enjoyed discussion of several Spanish countries, Spanish movies, and visits of South American speakers from area embassies. To be qualified for membership, students had to maintain a 4.0 average for second year and a 3.0 average was required for third and fourth year.

Counterbalancing the average person's thoughts concerning the Latin language, the Latin Club, sponsored by Mrs. Turner, experienced a refreshingly different year. A planning committee headed by Ducky Blair arranged various interesting activities which included film strips with Latin captions, crossword puzzles, and a treasure hunt in which two opposing teams search for articles in the school from a list written in Latin. Several meetings were spent writing Christmas cards in Latin distributed to all the faculty. Members also went Christmas caroling during the holidays. Climaxing the year was the annual Roman Banquet at which the members came dressed in togas and ate Roman food served by slaves. Entertainment consisted of singing and dancing and a satyr play.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Wood, the Science Club, open to all interested students, conducted many informative activities this year. The year began with experiments in paper chromatography and progressed to lectures given by the members. The topics ranged from astronomy to stereo to rockets. In its objective of broadening the interest and understanding of science throughout the school, the club sponsored the annual Science Fair in addition to its monthly programs.

As an honorary-service club, the Key Club performed various helpful acts for the school. The boys tolerated the cold December weather to sell Christmas trees and later, built shelves for the cafeteria. On March 15, interested members traveled to Roanoke for the purpose of electing division officers. In accordance with its charter, the club has only ten seniors, ten juniors, and five sophomores each year.

MIZPAH CLUB

Focusing spiritual light on the school, the Mizpah Club worked in its quiet way to help the needy and to promote the brotherhood of man. The club was in charge of the clothing drive and sold Christmas cards for the benefit of the Crippled Children's Society. Throughout the year individual members lectured on one facet of the club's objective—the study of the Christian religions of the world. Mizpah members also planned a trip to the National Cathedral and sponsored with the FTA a Christmas tea for the faculty.

Students fostering an interest in the absorbing game of chess participated in the Chess Club, sponsored by Mr. Tippens. As a member of an area league, the club's five best players competed with other members of the league.

Activities for the Radio Club were cut short soon after school started when the club's transmitter was stolen. This act necessitated the construction of a new transmitter and receiver. Other activities included learning the Morse Code and studying material to help members obtain their ham radio licenses.

The Diversified Occupations Club is the student organization of members of the Industrial Co-operative Training class. This year it met once a month for social enjoyment with members often providing the entertainment. At the District Meeting of the Diversified Occupations Club, Groveton won the District Championship in twelve different contests such as essays, occupational scrapbooks, and display. For its excellent showing, the D.O. Club received a handsome plaque.

Students having an interest in the strange network of foreign relations were attracted to the International Relations Club. Increased participation was due to stimulating programs and interesting guest speakers.

To begin the year with a basic understanding of the function of the State Department, the club made a tour of that building as its first activity. Guest speakers during the year included Mr. Joseph Wheeler, who spoke on the Peace Corps, and Mr. Augustus Johnson, whose subject was Turkey. Several panel discussions with visiting Latin American students sparked stimulation and sometimes heated debates on such issues as Cuba and the Congo. In addition, a representative from CARE spoke to the members about projects available for high school groups. Customarily, the nation-wide United Nations contest was given by the International Relations Club to several Groveton students.

Those fostering an interest in argumentation and discussion participated in debate, coached by Mrs. Howard. Members of the Freshman, JV, and Varsity teams were required to maintain a "C" average and to be in good standing with the school administration. On March 2 the teams attended the University of Richmond tournament and on March 23 participated in the George Washington University tournament.

Open to any former or current home economics student, the Future Homemakers of America worked to effect a closer co-operation in school activities. To carry this out, the FHA sponsored the December Freeze, the traditional winter dance, and the Breakfast Club, which offered juice and doughnuts every morning to students who had missed their morning meal. A parent-daughter banquet and a field trip were planned to provide both experience and pleasure for future homemakers.

Those students interested in teaching as a career found the Future Teachers of America organization informative and advantageous. The group, sponsored by Miss McGee, sent four members to the annual State Convention in Roanoke, where state officials for the FTA were elected. The club organized two teas this year, one on Mother's Day and another at Christmas, in co-operation with the Mizpah Club.

Eleven students interested in the theater met the challenge of collecting ten points equaling 100 hours of stage work and became members of the National Thespians Society. In addition, the society had two returning Honor Thespians plus five new honor members who acquired their status by earning 60 points.

Under the direction of its new sponsor, Mrs. Kogelman, a medieval morality play was presented at the District One-Act Play Festival at McLean High School. Upon receiving a superior rating, the cast and crew traveled to the State One-Act Play Festival at Charlottesville, where the play won high praise and a special "superior superior" rating for its unity, diction, and impressive performances by all the actors. The judge had not one word of criticism for the production and stated that many of the players bordered on the professional. Certainly the increasing strength in the drama department reflects unlimited ability put to maximum use.

TIGER RAG STAFF

Under the joint sponsorship of Miss Andrews and Mrs. Watkins, the Tiger Rag utilized new techniques in order to improve the school paper. The Northern Virginia Sun assumed the task of printing the nine issues with different paper and masthead to enhance the journal's appearance. To become acquainted with different ideas and methods, the Tiger Rag subscribed to eighty school papers from Virginia and other states. Exercising their annual scoop, the Tiger Rag was the first to announce the winners of the SCA elections. So that potential staff members for the following year could learn about the work involved in producing a publication, three students were sent to Lexington in April to the Southern Interscholastic Press Association. At the annual spring dinner the staff for next year was announced, and according to custom, it published the final issue of the year.

In its fourth year of existence the Oneirata, under the editorship of Lynn Shapiro and sponsorship of Mrs. Kesserer, underwent several policy changes. Among these were a larger and different cover, more extensive representation of the students, and an increase in the art staff. Only two editions were published this year; the second, however, served as a double issue. In addition the staff worked together on each job involved in compiling the literary magazine. As in previous years two promising juniors were sent to the Southern Interscholastic Press Association at Washington and Lee University to learn the techniques of assembling a school publication.

TIGERAMA CUBS

Headquartered in the Art Room this year, the Tigerama staff spent fourth period, many hours after school, and weekends taking pictures, arranging layout, and writing copy to compile an annual of the events and students that are Groveton. In accordance with the theme of change, Tigerama experienced many changes of its own. Drawings were added to several sections of the book to effect a greater aura of creativity, and portions of the cover were repeated on the dividers to achieve a sense of continuity. The pictures attempted to show students in the action of doing rather than in a state of being, and the photographer himself processed many of the pictures seen here. The new section of Features was also added.

Three faculty members worked in association to edit Tigerama '63, overseeing production, photography, and business. As usual, each staff member undertook one section of the book and shared the traditional secrets of cover design, theme, and dedication. Eager underclassmen served as cubs by assisting various editors in the completion of their sections. Credit is due to teachers and students for their patience in being photographed, re-photographed, and questioned for essential information. The result of that patience is here. The staff hopes you like it.

Often temptation offers the only incentive to hard work. At Groveton this temptation is in the form of the Emory Chesley Chapter of the National Honor Society. Inductees, accepted in the October and March inductions, were judged on scholarship, which entailed the maintenance of a 3.2 average, leadership, character, and service. Aside from the monthly meeting, activities included operation of the book store and the tutoring program. Proceeds from these projects went into a scholarship fund for a deserving senior who was selected from a list of applicants on the basis of character and scholastic achievement. Climaxing the year was the annual June picnic at which the gavel was officially presented to the new president and the officers were officially installed.

SPORTS

Cheerleaders promote enthusiasm by innovating spirited new actions.

In their job of intensifying and maintaining school spirit, the varsity cheerleaders displayed both perseverance and vitality. Just three days after school started, the eight-girl squad, under the supervision of Mrs. Watkins, conducted the first in a series of pep rallies which spurred both the football and basketball teams on to winning seasons. During football, the cheerleaders added Mike Smith, an ambitious Freshman boy, to the squad. During basketball, the girls introduced cartwheels and splits into several cheers. Their winter uniforms consisted of black culottes, white blouses, and black vests with gold letters.

Subordinate in rank but not in pep were the Freshmen and Junior Varsity cheerleaders. They faithfully attended their respective games and encouraged the teams that will soon lead the school.

Varsity gridgers march to second victorious season.

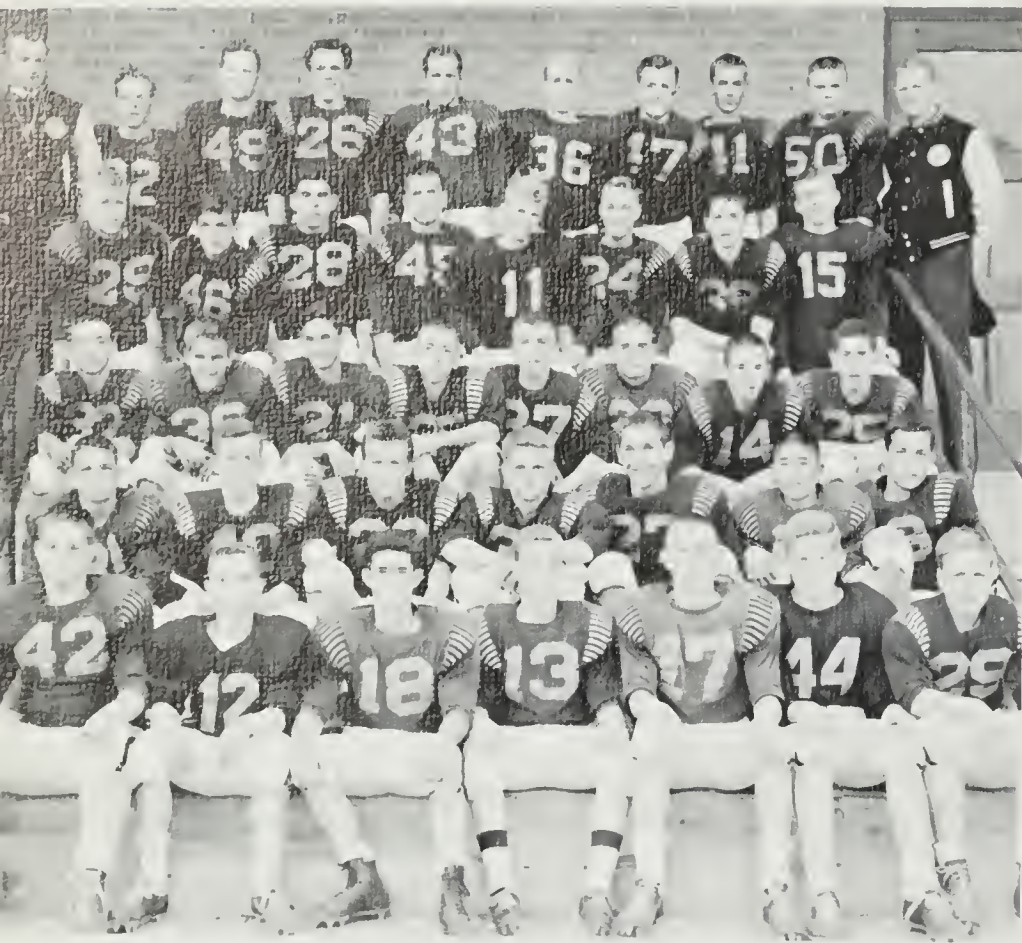

"We're behind you, boys, we're backin' you up!" The enthusiasm with which spectators repeated this phrase and the skill which the varsity gridgers displayed resulted in the best football season in Groveton's history. The boys were justifiably proud to close the season with a 6-4 record.

The 33-man squad was deservedly honored at the annual Awards Assembly held in December with Head Coach Gene Hess presiding. Among the more important awards were those of sportsmanship and most improved player, won by Jimmy Snyder and Bill Poff respectively. Rusty Shelton, Trigger Vance, Dave Ringwalt, and Gary Calhoun made the All County Team, and Bob Stephens and Gary Calhoun received honorable mention on the All Northern District Team. The huge Optimist Trophy now enhances the trophy case for Groveton's history-making football record of 1962.

The Junior Varsity Football Team also was outstanding this year. With a 6-2 record, the team ended the season in a tie for the Fairfax County championship. In addition to the usual offensive and defensive squads, Coaches Henderson and Jackson created a suicide squad, which specialized in kick-off and punt returns. Certainly the players who made this impressive record will enhance their future teams.

Inexperience was no handicap for the Freshman squad this year. Under the guidance of Coaches Haslett and Ashline, the team closed the season with a favorable 3-3 record. Of the 100 boys who tried out for the team, 40 were kept on, and 10 moved up to Junior Varsity at the end of the season. The team's biggest triumph was the defeat of Mt. Vernon, 12-0. It can be safely predicted that these boys will display even greater skill next year.

Decisive wins and heart-

Such records as being county champs for the second year in a row, standing second in the Northern Virginia league, and obtaining second place in the State for won-and-lost percentages were all true of this year's Varsity Basketball Team. Ending the season with an over-all 16-3 record, the team terminated a round of games, some of which were won by landslides, some of which were too close for comfort, all of which were showcases for practiced skill and excellent synchronization. It must also be noted that in the five years of Mr. Canfield's coaching, Groveton has had five winning basketball seasons. He emphasized not only physical aspects of the game, such as strengthening defensive and fast-break plays, but also an optimistic mental attitude. This unbeatable combination produced a county record of 23-0, and, more importantly, a team of true "winners."

breaking losses mark exciting season.

Outstanding players were recognized at the Awards Assembly, at which Bob Stephens received the best free throw shooter and most valuable awards; Rusty Shelton, the best defensive player and sportsmanship awards; and Whit Krumm, the most improved player award. High Scorers Stephens and Perreault each racked up over 200 points; Shelton and Poff, over 100 points; and Denitto, Berlo, and Krumm, over 70 points. Besides breaking the school's rebound record, Bob Stephens received honorable mention at State and made the all-county and all-Northern Virginia teams. Poff and Perreault made the all-county team and received honorable mention in Northern Virginia. There they all are—all the statistics, records, and awards of this year's varsity team. Who can call them anything but great?

J.V.'s best all previous records, placing 2nd in Northern Virginia,

Continuing the trend set by many of Groveton's teams this year, the JV Basketball Team had the best record in its history, 13-3. Coach Keely attributed the fine performances to strong teamwork rather than to individuality. Backing up this statement are the facts that every boy played in every game and that the average score per game was 49 to the opponents' 41. For their contribution in placing second in the county and second in Northern Virginia, Mike Bramley was selected as the most valuable player and John Nelson received the sportsmanship award.

Twenty eager freshmen boys produced a record of 6-4 for their basketball team. The season started auspiciously with the defeat of Mt. Vernon and continued with the close games against Falls Church and Lee. With Coach Henderson presiding at the Freshman Awards Assembly, Joe DeBriyn was recognized as high scorer, Dan Bishop as top rebounder, and Kenny Perreault as the best sport and top assist man.

STATE TOURNAMENT ENTRIES

Aided by the return of many of last year's outstanding wrestlers, this year's team produced a 6-5 record, one of the best in the school's history. The defeat of Ft. Belvoir prep school and St. Stephens in scrimmage matches helped boost the 25 boys to their fine record and six of them to places in the Northern Virginia Tournament. The same six qualified for state competition at Wakefield on February 22-23, where Mac Page placed second, Pete Stephens fifth, and Joe Grula seventh, in their respective weight classes. Under the direction of Mr. Berry, the wrestling team enjoyed increasing popularity and the results of relentless practice.

Freshmen and Sophomores dominate J.V. team and gain

Taking advantage of the experience of nine returning lettermen, the Varsity Baseball Team looked forward to a winning season. Fans witnessed many a victory due partly to old pros like Jim Snyder, Pete Denitto, and Gary Calhoun, but mostly to excellent teamwork, a desire to win, and the experience of Coach Panagos. The team was also aided by an improved playing field and new dugouts.

Coach Haslett weeded out 23 of the best prospects from a large turnout of 70 to mold them into a first-rate Junior Varsity Baseball Team. The team, composed mainly of sophomores, also had the experience of two returning players.

Intramurals grow in number of participants, number of sports.

For those who did not participate in varsity sports but who did retain an interest, intramurals provided an outlet for energy. Under the supervision of Mr. Canfield and Mrs. Ingham, both girls and boys participated in basketball, tennis, and volleyball, while only boys could specialize in softball, wrestling, touch football, and badminton. The program was very successful this year, and both coaches hope for an even greater turnout next year. Intramural participants met intermittently throughout both the winter and spring.

Hockey teams exhibit sportsmanship and spirit in spite of losses.

JUNIOR VARSITY HOCKEY TEAM

According to Coach Rita Mann, this year's Varsity Hockey team displayed some of the finest sportsmanship ever seen at Groveton. Despite the record of 0-5-2, the girls never let more than two points be scored against them. One disadvantage was that only two of the team's eighteen members were returning lettermen. These were Millie Neitzey, named the most valuable player, and Lynn Martin, presented with the sportsmanship award.

The Junior Varsity team, coached by Mrs. Effertz, ended the season with no wins, four losses, and one tie. As the team consisted mainly of inexperienced Freshmen, it fared very well for a beginning year.

The initial defeat of Annandale for the first time in the school's history encouraged the Girl's Varsity Basketball Team to produce a record of 8 wins and 3 losses. Coach Ingham overcame a lack of experience by emphasizing teamwork, which resulted in outstanding performances against their opponents.

Composed mostly of inexperienced freshmen, the Girls' JV Basketball Team ended its season with an outstanding 7-4 record. In accordance with Groveton's other basketball teams, individual recognition was minimized while teamwork was stressed. At the Awards Assembly Debbie Carson received the sportsmanship award.

Softball girls learn to work together through team play.

With the experience of three returning players, two of whom were returning lettermen, and the promising potential of many freshmen and sophomores, Miss Mann worked hard to build up the Varsity Softball team. Compensating for the lack of experience were the assets of teamwork and an eagerness to learn.

Pooling inexperience and lots of spirit, the JV Softball team, under the coaching of Miss Roberts, worked well together to learn the playing techniques and the teamwork necessary in establishing a skillful team.

PANELISTS

Groveton students received various opportunities to increase and utilize their knowledge by appearing on local television shows. On September 2nd, three Seniors participated in "It's Academic", and throughout the year several Seniors interviewed political personalities on "Youth Wants to Know." Contestants for these shows were chosen for their scholastic ability and their interest in public affairs.

Again this year many Seniors were the recipients of awards given by both local and national organizations. The Betty Crocker Test was administered to all Senior girls to discover the best potential homemaker in the fields of cooking, sewing, and decorating. The Mt. Vernon Chapter of the Optimists' Club awarded citations to the Senior boy and girl who were best all-around both scholastically and extracurricularly. Several Seniors received letters of commendation for their scores on the National Merit Scholarship Test, and Groveton had one semi-finalist, Bette Bartelmes.

Each senior was asked to select one girl and one boy for each of the categories during Senior Week in October. If the persons recognized in this section distinguish themselves accordingly in later life, the superlatives will have served another purpose: that of provoking the exclamation, "Why, I knew him (or her) when . . . !"

FRESHMEN

MRS. HOLT

Entering Groveton as timorous lowerclassmen, the Freshmen soon found comfort in numbers—the class registration was an overpowering 650. Eager to strengthen both their standing and their treasury, the Freshmen planned with sponsors Mrs. Holt and Mr. Ashline various activities including bakesales and a spring dance. After an impressive first year, the Freshman class will undoubtedly continue to inject its vitality into Groveton for years to come.

MR. HUPART
MRS. JAMES

The Sophomore class, suspended between the lower and upper classes, became instruments of various scholastic experiments this year. It participated in the new biology, mathematics, and English programs and was the first to have two Sophomore exchange students. By representing their class extensively in sports and activities, tenth graders widened not only their fields of interest but also their service to the school. Under the sponsorship of Mrs. James and Mr. Hupart, the class officers initiated such endeavors as bake sales, the election of a reporter, and the planning of a semester party and spring hayride. After a progressive year both scholastically and extra-curricularly, the Sophomores ended favorably a term of training as potential upperclassmen.

Finally upperclassmen, the Juniors eagerly attacked the traditional problem of raising money to finance the Junior-Senior Prom. Profits from frequent bake sales and carwashes provided a substantial part of the needed $1,000 or more. The largest social event for raising money was the Highlander Hex. Although the "hex" failed, the street dance held the night before the football game in the parking lot was a great success.

Raising money, however, did not completely dominate Junior activities. December brought the confusion of choosing class rings and the results of the PSAT tests, which reminded students of their imminent decisions concerning their futures. The class also exercised its privilege of attending upperclass activities, and many Juniors emerged as leaders in academics, sports, and activities.

SENIORS

A year of change descended immediately upon us as we, the new Seniors, assumed our position as leaders of the school. We experienced the struggle with college boards, the joy of a winning football season, and the process of maturing both as a class and as individuals. The Prom gave us a chance to recall the memories of a year in which we recognized the diversified talents of our classmates during Senior Week; produced the Senior Play; abolished class dues; and inherited the Senior Parking Lot and its immovable objects, the Juniors.

Commencement found us seated in the stadium, together as a class for the last time. The traditional ceremony represented the culmination of four years of hoping, planning, and learning. Now, as Commencement is a Beginning, we must utilize this knowledge to seek as individuals our goals in life.

JOHN JOSEPH MARCHE
July 7, 1945 — February 19, 1963

This is the day, this day of all time, mother of all children, life of all men. Unto this day I bring my heart and my smile that they may become a part of all men, all life.

This day of golden sun, of the greenest tree and the first kites and laughing children; ah, this day comes in the yellow of a buttercup, the blue of the sea-sky . . . comes all in color and feeling and joy. This is the time when spring is born; winter, winter, cold and lifeless-gray is gone, is over.

When my life stops for a moment, today, in this screaming stillness and this time of sadness . . . tears at winter's death shall water the seeds of spring flowers. I shall live, I shall sing; my voice shall laugh with the children at play, sing with the sweet-smelling grass of the spring. My voice, voice of all ages, all seasons, all children: I am the soft winds of spring that sway the daisy, the new tree that reaches for sun, soul of all men, child of all mothers. Days of all life and all time shall be my remembrance and my life.
